Marion County Codes and Ordinances Available On-Line

Marion County's ordinances have been codified and the code is now easy to find on-line by going to Marion County's home page: www.co.marion.or.us and looking under "What's New."

"We've wanted to do this for a long time," explained Marion County Commissioner and board chair Sam Brentano. "We are so glad to see it a reality. Having our ordinances well organized and easy to locate, readily available and accessible to the public is excellent and fully promotes open government," he added.

With the help of Code Publishing, Inc. from Seattle, the Marion County Code can now be searched by topics and titles. The public can view the code and print out sections of interest. In addition, sections of the Marion County Code that are amended will be highlighted in yellow so users can see when a code has recently been revised. When new ordinances are adopted they will be quickly codified and go onto the website.

The public can also view codes and ordinances from other cities and counties around the state and the country by going to <http://www.codepublishing.com/elibrary.html>.
