Dairy farmers of Oregon

Oregon's dairy industry began 170 years ago with the settlement of the Oregon Country. Today it is composed of some 320 dairy farm families and 20 dairy processors who, with the help of 120,000 dairy cows, produce top-quality milk and award-winning cheeses and other dairy products.

The industry has responded to consumer needs and wishes by consistently providing an increasingly diverse line of dairy products. Nearly 60 percent of the state's milk is sold as fluid; the remaining 40 percents goes into cheese, yogurt, sour cream, ice cream, butter and other cultured products. Dry milk and dry whey are also produced from Oregon milk.

For more information on Oregon dairy products and dairy product nutrition, visit the Dairy Farmers of Oregon Web site, www.dairyfarmersor.com.
